ACTIVITY TIPS SHEET

The January board meeting is an ideal time for a special presentation. Students, teachers and staff can all participate, and community members will welcome the opportunity to thank board members for their service.

Use the following ideas to draw attention to your appreciation efforts.

Board Meeting Recognition Tips

Here are a few ideas to help you plan a recognition event during a board meeting.

- Have school librarians dedicate books in the name of each board member as a lasting symbol of the board's contribution to student learning. Prior to the meeting in January, give members a chance to look at the books being given in their names and sign each of them.
- Present board members with coupons for "Free School Lunch." Have them sit with members of student senate or another student group.
- Put together an e-mail to students, district staff or civic organizations to announce School Board Recognition Week. Invite them to the January school board meeting to join in the celebration.
- Ask a local restaurant or grocery store to sponsor refreshments or dinner for the board.
- Promote the event at school events and on school message centers or marquees.
- Ask teachers or staff members to donate a gift to each board member, such as goodie baskets, athletic or play tickets, personalized mugs, etc.
- Create a slide show presentation featuring the board members and their accomplishments. Be sure to show off improvements in student achievement, new or renovated facilities and innovative academic programs.
- Introduce students and staff members from each grade or department and have them voice their support and appreciation for your school board members.
- Decorate entrances to school or administration buildings. Use the logo sheet to create banners or signs.
- Feature student entertainment at the board meeting.
- Give special recognition to board members with lengthy service records.
- Set up a recognition corner or area in the public library to exhibit memorabilia from past school boards.
- Arrange for a florist to donate a rose for each board member and place it at his or her place at the board meeting.

More Tips for Getting Students and Staff Involved

- Ask schools to "adopt a board member" and board members to story time with the first graders or lunch with the sixth graders, for example.
- Ask elementary children or high school design students to color and decorate "School Board Recognition Week" posters to put up in the school building or in downtown store windows.
- Use school message centers (bulletin boards, etc.) to thank school board members.
- Plan a special school lunch. Have board members sit with members of the student council or other student group.
- Ask students, teachers or staff members to place a "thank you" ad in the school newspaper.
- Ask each board member to answer the question, "Why do you serve on the school board?" Use these personal quotes along with photos of each board member in school newsletter or web site.

- Invite board members to a school sporting event and arrange a special ceremony to honor them at halftime.

Tips for Reaching Out to Your Community

- Encourage organizations or groups to send board members a note of appreciation, gift basket or thank you gift.
- Seek endorsement and recognition for the school board from the Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber is a leader in economic development and knows the value of a strong education system in attracting new industry.
- Encourage the city council, local chamber of commerce or PTA to sponsor a PSA “Thank You” announcement at a local radio station (look for the sample PSAs).
- Ask your community’s civic or business clubs to host your board at a breakfast or a lunch.
- Arrange a speaking engagement at a local service or civic club to explain the school board’s role in public school governance.
- Ask the PTA to place a “thank you” ad in the local newspaper.
- Encourage local businesses to place school board appreciation slogans on their marquee for the week. See the sample slogans provided for ideas.

Tips to Involve the Media

- Invite local media to cover any special presentations recognizing board members during the January school board meeting.
- Send a press release on School Board Recognition Week to your local newspaper, television stations and radio stations.
- Submit a letter to the editor.
- Ask your local radio station to run a public service announcement thanking school board members for their service. See the included sample PSA announcement for ideas.
- Ask a student or the school webmaster to design a School Board Recognition Week ad or web page for your district’s web site.
- Call or e-mail your local news media to encourage them to interview school board members.
- Suggest the education reporter write a feature story about the person who has served the longest on the school board.
- Provide media representatives with information about what the board does, the major decisions facing your board, important actions the board has taken, or the amount of time each board member devotes to public schools.
- Schools with access to a district cable TV channel can use their time to conduct interviews with local board members and have informal talks on board service.

MEDIA RELATIONS - SAMPLE LETTER TO THE EDITOR

[Date]

Dear Editor:

In challenging times, a community's elected officials face incredible challenges. Often, they are required to make choices and decisions they never dreamed they might face when agreeing to offer themselves up for public service.

In (your district's name), school board members must develop policies and make tough decisions on complex educational and social issues impacting the entire community.

South Dakota School Board Recognition Week provides a perfect opportunity to honor the contributions being made daily by our school board members.

Serving on a local school board has always been more than what the public sees: meetings once or twice a month and demanding issues, such as the school calendar, dress codes or attendance boundaries.

But beyond that, our board members play a very real role in preparing the district's students for an ever-changing world. They help spread the word about the individual and collective successes of our students and our professional staff.

This community is fortunate to have a team of dedicated men and women on the (insert district name) School Board who are champions both of fiscal responsibility and community progress. For these and many other reasons, they deserve our support and appreciation during School Board Recognition Week.
