Becoming A Candidate For School Board

Serving as a school board member is a challenging job that requires leadership, vision and dedication—it's one of the most important responsibilities a citizen can undertake. If elected, you and your fellow board members will shape the future of your community and society by establishing educational goals that help students reach high levels of achievement.

School board members in South Dakota are elected officials. School boards consist of five, seven, or nine members whose terms are from one to three years initially, and three years thereafter.

RUNNING FOR OFFICE

To become a school board candidate, you must first pick up a nominating petition from the school business office. Next, have it signed by at least 20 qualified voters of the school district. The last step is to return the nominating petition to the school district business office no later than 5 p.m. on the Friday designated by the election calendar for the specified election date.

School board elections are held in April, May and June with each local school board setting the date for the district's election.

WHO IS ELIGIBLE?

To be eligible serve on a South Dakota school board, one must be:

- At least 18 years old.
- A resident of the school district.
- Eligible voter of the district or representative area.

What Does a Board Member Do?

The job of a school board is complex, but can be simplified in one phrase: A school board's primary function is provide local leadership that improves student achievement. A focused, effective school board can provide the leadership, direction and oversight necessary to provide students and the community with the best possible schools.

As a school board member, your role is to act as part of a governance leadership team that can leverage the board's unique role in improving student achievement. The most effective boards focus their efforts into five areas.

SETTING CLEAR EXPECTATIONS

The most effective boards understand that learning is job one. Using their policy-making and appropriations authority, boards consider and evaluate how the district's actions are contributing to student learning – the core work of schools.

ALLOCATING RESOURCES TO NEEDS

Effective school boards recognize that students walk through the door with different needs. School boards must allocate resources – time, money and personnel – in a way that makes the greatest impact for every student.

HOLDING THE SYSTEM ACCOUNTABLE

It's important to set meaningful goals for the school system, and it's just as important that the board works with the school staff and community to measure whether progress is being made and that the district is making the best use of the district's financial resources.

BUILDING THE PUBLIC WILL

Effective boards look for ways to spur involvement from parents and the community. The most successful public schools are responsive to the local community and actively involve a broad range of stakeholders in developing and furthering the district's goals.

LEARNING AS A BOARD TEAM

Effective school boards recognize the importance of their work and focus on learning and operating as a board team. That means the board and administration are committed to using evidence to support the work being done and continually evaluating results based on the ultimate goal – student learning.
